

lantern poles of the eco-district

(Castelnau-le-Lez, France)

The lights in the central square of Mas Caylus look like bouquets of lanterns. They are positioned between the trees, accompany the multitude of uses and underline the festive atmosphere of this place. This specific lighting furniture defines the identity of this eco-district and the lighting of the square contributes to its image.

contracting authority GGL aménagement
designers
les éclairieurs
manufacturer
Technilum
photograph
Jean-Luc Girod